A watercolor illustration of two bats flying over a sunset or sunrise sky. The sky is painted with soft, blended washes of orange, yellow, and purple. The bats are dark silhouettes with spread wings, positioned in the lower right quadrant of the illustration. The entire scene is set against a background of aged, textured paper with deckled edges.

3 Ways to Use These

1. Paint a wet-in-wet night sky

Wet your paper first, then drop in dusky lavender and peach behind your bat silhouette and let the colour bloom softly for an autumn dusk sky.

2. String a garland

Cut out your painted bats and string them on twine for instant Halloween bunting.

3. Decorate cards and journal pages

Cut a single bat or gift tag from the painted sheets and glue onto a plain card or journal page for a quick, pretty embellishment.
